NAVAL BATTLE IN CHANNEL ENDS IN DRAW

LAST GERMAN ARMY ANNIHILATED

It was incorrectly announced in GRAUSTARK #28 that the German Army in Silesia had been forced by the events of Spring 1905 to retreat into Warsaw. Actually, since no German orders had been received, this army was annihilated.

LONDON: Prime Minister Koning, speaking for the British government, today announced that Parliament has rejected the Declaration of War recently received from Rome. This action was taken after Foreign Minister Smythe informed the House of Commons that there has been no official government in Italy since the assassination of King Humberto in 1900, and that the declaration was obviously the work of exuberant Italian teenagers.

CONSTANTINOPLE: England is now strong, strong as she has been in the past, strong as she will be in the future. However, she must keep her guard high, her arsenal powerful, her forces mighty for she never knows from where she may be attacked. It is for her to keep freedom in the world. She can not do this by bowing to the forces of aggression practising oppression. But alas it appears that the new government has been infiltrated by the left. If England fails to follow common sense and allows the "liberals" any authority, the world may be doomed to suffer the shackles of totalitarianism. It is not a vice to be extreme in the pursuit of freedom nor is it a virtue to be moderate in the pursuit of justice. Beware England lest you fall into the leftist trap and disappear from your present position of prominence in world affairs. Turkey, like most of the other lesser countries, respect your power (it is a sign of the success of your system) but as soon as you let it slip all will begin like a pack of wolves, seeing what we can grab without risking a showdown. Let us pray that you will follow the right path. The hopes of Turkey are with you.

GENEVA: Observers here are inclined to believe that the communique from Turkey is an example of political Aesopism. It is suggested that the despatch was meant to be read with the substitution of "America" for "England" and "Canada" for "Turkey". The true meaning of the plea becomes clear when it is read through a bottle of gold water (chemical formula AuH_2S).
